

At Slughorn's

Dumbledore glanced (1) _____ and (2) _____ the street. It seemed quite deserted. "Wand (3) _____ and follow me, Harry," he said quietly.

He opened the gate and walked swiftly and silently (4) _____ the garden path, Harry at his heels, then pushed the front door very slowly, his wand raised and (5) _____ the ready.

"Lumos."

Dumbledore's wand tip ignited, casting its light (6) _____ a narrow hallway. To the left, another door stood open. Holding his illuminated wand (7) _____, Dumbledore walked (8) _____ the sitting room with Harry right (9) _____ him.

A scene of total devastation met their eyes. A grandfather clock lay splintered (10) _____ their feet, its face cracked, its pendulum lying a little farther (11) _____ like a dropped sword. A piano was on its side, its keys strewn (12) _____ the floor. The wreckage of a fallen chandelier flittered (13) _____. Cushions lay deflated, feathers oozing from slashes in their sides; fragments of glass and china lay like powder (14) _____ everything. Dumbledore raised his wand even higher, so that its light was thrown (15) _____ the walls, where something darkly red and glutinous was spattered (16) _____ the wallpaper. Harry's small intake of breath made Dumbledore look (17) _____.

"Not pretty, is it?" he said heavily. "Yes, something horrible has happened (18) _____."

Fill in the gaps with the missing preposition:

Across

Aloft

Around

At

At

Away

Behind

Down

Here

Into

Nearby

Out

Over

Over

Up

Up

Up

Upon

